Breathitt Says:

ABC Tax Program Inadequate For UK

Former governor A. B. Chandler's proposed tax program can not adequately finance the University, stated Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt last Friday.

Breathitt, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate and Chandler opponent in the May Democratic primary, assailed Chandler's tax proposals as being ones which would starve the state of funds for higher and general education.

"You can not just take $35 million out of your general fund budget," he said. "If this money has to be replaced with other tax programs, such taxes will stifle economic growth that would give us any additional funds," he added.

Breathitt's reference was to Chandler's proposal to eliminate such items as food, clothing, and medicine from the present state sales tax. Chandler contends that a better balance between sales and income taxes will compensate for the loss of any revenue through an adjustment in the present sales tax program.

Making his initial campaign appearance on the campus, Breathitt breakfasted with students in the SUB cafeteria and then conducted a brief handshaking hour across the campus before leaving for a public appearance in Winchester.

Breathitt did not speak to an assembled group while here. His comments came in an interview with four Kernel staff members.

The 33 year old Hopkinsville attorney discussed University related questions ranging from academic freedom and state executive—Uni-

History Professor Has Best Forest

A distinguished professor of history and head of the UK Department of History received a $500 award as top winner of the 1962 Tom Wallace Forestry Award contest.

Dr. Thomas Clark, the winner said, "I have always wanted to own a piece of land in Kentucky to prove that some of our poor old soil can grow trees."

Farm foresters from Kentucky and Southern Indiana split the top four awards in the contest which is sponsored by the Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times, and WHAS, Inc.

Dr. Clark has received numerous honors. He came to Kentucky as a graduate student in 1923 and has headed the history department here since 1942. He has just completed a term on the board of trustees; is a former "distinguished professor of the year," a member of the committee to select a new president, and has been a member of the school's athletic committee. He has given countless lectures both in the United States and in foreign countries.

The 160-acre Garrard County forest, winning for "having the most complete and effective forestry program," was bought in 1935 after he read an advertisement in a newspaper. He set out

By a vote of 67 to 38, the University Faculty yesterday passed the 1963-64 University calendar which will shorten both the fall and spring semesters.

The number of class days will be the same; however, the first semester will begin in early September and end before Christmas. The Thanksgiving holiday will consist of one day. Second semester will start the middle of January and end the first of May.

Dr. Charles F. Elton, dean of admissions and registrar, originally proposed the plan to the November Faculty meeting. At this time, the calendar included a study week prior to final examinations. This has been excluded.

However, an amendment was passed to lengthen the final examination period from five to six days in order to make the number of final examinations taken on any one day lighter.

Dr. Elton said possibly some 150 to 200 students may be hindered in entering UK at the semester break because of the early starting date of the second semester.

He added that this, then, would necessitate the majority of new students entering the University in the fall semester rather than the second semester.

Raleigh Lane, president of Student Congress, presented the results of a random campus survey conducted by the editorial staff of the Kentucky Kernel at the meeting. Out of 114 students interviewed, 103 favored the new calendar change.

Some objections were voiced to the plan in a report by Dr. Ralph H. Weaver, chairman of the University Faculty Council and professor of microbiology.

He said one objection was raised by Bernie Shively, director of Intercollegiate Athletics, who feared an earlier ending date in the second semester might interfere with spring sports. "However, we cannot allow this to interfere with

Ward Resigns As English Head

Dr. William S. Ward has announced his resignation as head of the Department of English, Speech, and Dramatic Arts.

He said his resignation, which will become effective at the end of this academic year, was given both in the interest of the department and himself.

It is Dr. Ward's conviction that in the best interests of a department, some fairly limited maximum should be placed on the number of years a department head may be allowed to serve in this capacity. Dr. Ward, who has served in this position for the past twelve years, believes this constitutes such a maximum for himself.

Dr. Ward said his reading, teaching, and writing have suffered as a result of the necessary work involved in being head of the Department of English. He expressed a great desire to teach and pursue his interest in English Literature of the Romantic Period.

He will remain as a member of the University faculty in the Department of English and will teach courses dealing with the Romantic Period.

Dr. Ward also intends to devote more time to literary research and writing. He is the author of several published articles on Shelley, Byron, Wordsworth and others.

He has been a member of the University faculty for the past 33 years except for a three year interval when he attended Duke University to complete work in his doctorate.

On February 1, 1951, he was selected to replace Dr. Herman E. Spivey as Head of the Department of English, Speech, and Dramatic Arts, when Dr. Spivey was named Dean of the Graduate School.

Clark Gets Award

pines, cut fire lanes and thinned the growth on the $12.50 an acre tract of land.

Helping him to win were a couple of acres of loblolly pines now 12 to 15 feet tall and 100 Chinese chestnut trees throughout the forest "because this used to be good chestnut country."

He has marked and sold approximately 60,000 feet of timber for $20 a thousand feet on the stump.
Dr. Clark said, "Kentucky is going to have to establish a market for forest products that appeal to timber growers, a market good enough so owners cannot afford not to practice good management."

For this reason, he said, "timberland is horribly managed because trees are not replanted and bad trees are permitted to come back, and until recently there has been a big fire hazard."

He also believes much of Eastern Kentucky's salvation lies in intelligent forest management.

Dr. Clark said he first became interested in forestry as a boy on a Mississippi cotton farm when he saw how saw-mill operators indiscriminately cut timber.

The award will be presented in Louisville February 9 at the annual Farm Awards Luncheon.

Breathitt Talks

versity relations to the necessity of continued high academic standards for the University.

When asked what his relationship with the University would be if he were elected governor, Breathitt stated he would lend all the leadership possible toward aiding the institution to become one of the great state universities.

The governor serves as ex-officio chairman of the University Board of Trustees.

He stated that if he should be elected, he would offer no political interference with relation to internal matters of the University.

"I think that any political interference by the governor can only be harmful to the University in the long run," he said.

"I feel there must be academic freedom and leadership for and by the faculty without the political interference as existed during the administration of my opponent in the case of Gladys Kammerer of the political science department," he added.

Dr. Kammerer, a vociferous critic of the Chandler administration, charged several years ago that she did not receive a raise because of pressure emanating from Frankfort. She left the University to accept a teaching position at another institution.

Breathitt said that cases relating to academic freedom should be handled by committees of the University faculty and staff.

"I think any governor who would interject himself into a matter of this kind would be misinterpreted by the public, by groups that give accreditation to the University, and by other people in the academic field throughout the nation," said the candidate.

Breathitt stated that if elected, it would be his responsibility to meet with the staff of the University and the finance department with respect to the budget. "For the University to serve its purpose it must be adequately financed," he said. It was here that he made reference to Chandler's tax proposal as being inadequate to channel these necessary funds to the University.

He said the institution has failed in the past to avail itself of the nation's numerous research grants.
"This has basically been a failure of funds. We have never been able to fully qualify as we have never had sufficient staff or research facilities," he commented.

In pointing out that some institutions have up to 40 percent of their operating budget financed by research grants and private foundations, he promised that if elected, he would give full financial support to the University so as it could qualify for these same grants.

"It's an area in which we are moving ahead," he stated. "We have made great progress in recent years but we still have a long way to go."

He said the University will continually have to emphasize its high standards. "With the increased demand for enrollment we will have to furnish facilities for all graduates of our institutions of secondary education."

"The University is going to have to be the school which has standards sufficiently high that a graduate of this University can compete with the graduates of any school in the nation or in the world."

"This is an objective which as a graduate of this University in two of its colleges, I want to help, either as a citizen, or as governor
if I am elected."

Breathitt is a graduate of both the College of Commerce and the School of Law.

The Hopkinsville native will compete against Chandler, Rumsey Taylor, Mary Louise Foust, and Hubert Carpenter, in the May gubernatorial primary.

Attention—Help Has Arrived! Exam Week Needn't Be A Drag

By NANCY LOUGHRIDGE
Assistant Campus Editor

Now that final week is breathing down our necks and the lights burn far into the night in hopes that knowledge will soon be acquired, the time has arrived for the thoughtful student to take positive action.

Amid nightmares of being suffocated by thousands of blue books, here are a few suggestions to make that stay in the seventh circle of hell a little more bearable. First and foremost, there is a great deal of help available especially if you have trouble staying awake, and who doesn't? There are marvelous little caffeine pills to give you a lift or if you have a medical type friend, there are prescription type pep pills, like dexedrine.

For the industrious student who is rather short on "long green" this is an excellent time to make a few coins selling coffee, cookies, crisp sheets, old tests, and poison.

In case you're wondering if the University ever casts a pitying eye in your direction, here is the answer. Does your roommate snore, whine, or make likewise distracting sounds while asleep? Do you yearn for a quiet haven in which to study and take advantage of that wonderful new privilege which is yours (senior hours)? At last your problem is solved, Margaret I. King Library has come to your aid.

These generous souls are going to stay on duty until midnight throughout final week to give the student a place to study.

You really must take advantage of this opportunity for study and recreation. Using your coveted hours you blithely sail to a study cubicle and settle down for some real concentration. Suddenly you are jarred from your thoughts by a bell. Relax! It's only the 11:30 bell. You have until 11:45 to get out. Funny the library is supposed to be open until midnight, but who can study with all the chairs and mops, etc. in action?

Now if you are one of those forward thinking creatures who brought your date, this is the time when the library's new system really comes in handy. Maybe the Powers That Be decided the Sports Center lot was over crowded or perhaps it's just too cold for students to be out in cars. No matter, the King Library solved this problem. At 11:45 the lights are to be turned out and the building will be locked at the witching hour. Just think, no sitting in a cold car or standing out in the weather for that goodnight kiss. Now, thanks to our thoughtful superiors, we have at least ten minutes to say that fond farewell in warmth and comfort. All this and a place to study too. Pretty thoughtful don't you think, especially during this period of great emotional trial when every moment of your time counts.

Of course, if this doesn't appeal to your finer academic senses (and if it doesn't you've got rocks in your beanie) you can always move your studies to some place else in your housing unit. But if you do, you're running the risk of encountering that old bridge partner and getting side tracked. However, the clever student plans for all possibilities and finds the answer in earplugs and blinders.

Now if these aids fail to help you through the trying days ahead you can always jog over to the med-center and quietly throw a fit or two and get out of commission for the rest of the semester. Attention: med center staff, there may be a run on beds and straight jackets today.

Don't let life get you down, the weather man has his traditional bit of cheer to offer us at this time also. He's designated this as Polar Bear Week, so it may be necessary to stock up on cold pills and snuffle tissue as well as long underwear and frostbite medication. Our spies tell us that this jolly little man is practicing his snow dance in expectation of great amounts of the fluffy white to greet us on that first bright, inspiring day of finals. Oh joy!

If you are one of the luckier ones, who finds that finals are not the traumatic experience they are cracked up to be, why don't you just shut up and let the rest of us suffer in peace. After all, we can't be miserable without company and radicals have no place in the tortured and beaten community of final exam takers.

At least we can never say that our University didn't plan for us. What with the thoughtfulness of the library people and a little help from the local apothecary keepers we may all survive yet. Well, we can hope can't we? Lots of luck and all that sort of bunk next week.

Why Girls Lose Out On Jobs

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A recent survey shows that hairbows, dark glasses, and smoking are three big reasons why girls don't get jobs they seek.

According to the study, the hairbows are a typical affliction among girls with an immature attitude. The same is true of casual shoes, sausage curls, and giggling.

The girl in sunglasses was described as a "sure loser."

Working Mothers Blamed

VIENNA (AP)—Prosperity boosts the crime rate, a leading Austrian criminologist said.

In the last 50 years the number of crimes in Austria has increased by 50 percent, said Dr. Roland Grassberger, the new rector of Vienna's University.

He says the main reasons for the increase of the crime rate are the welfare state and the employment of mothers.

Grassberger is the head of the institute for criminology in Vienna.

He says that in 1890's, when the general living standard was very low, 133 of 100,000 people were convicted as criminals. With Austria's unprecedented economic boom, now the figure has risen to 196.

Statistics also show that the number of thefts has doubled since the time of mass unemployment during the economic world crises.

Only seven people of 100 stole because of poverty, a recent survey disclosed.

The number of people arrested for sex offenses is even five times as high as it was 70 years ago.

Juveniles have the largest share in the increase of criminality, he says. Most of the juvenile delinquents come from well-to-do families and have never suffered any needs.

The dean blames the fact that many mothers have jobs. He says mothers nowadays simply have not enough time for their children.

They try to compensate the lack of care with presents and ample allowances. However, there is nothing more important for the development of a child than a harmonious family life, says Grassberger.

Where We Stand

With the appearance of the Kernel's front page article in today's issue concerning Ned Breathitt's visit to the campus last Friday we would like to state the Kernel's position in the 1963 gubernatorial race. Neither now, nor later will we endorse a candidate, Democrat or Republican, in the gubernatorial race.

Our aim is to inform our readers about the men who are running for office. We will not editorialize on the merit of any candidate, for we do not feel it is our duty to do so.

We shall report to the student body the proposals, made by any and all candidates, which relate to the University or on any proposal which might involve UK.

Releases about all candidates from authorized campus campaign chairmen will be acknowledged and appreciated. And all candidates will be given coverage in the Kernel, provided they have something of value to say concerning the University.

We hope the students understand our effort to inform them of the political race which is fast coming into the front pages of newspapers all over the state and that they will read and evaluate intelligently what is said in respect to the forthcoming election.

The Tables Will Turn

The football season in the United States is nearly over—thank goodness. Enough football has been stuffed down the mouths of the sporting public to last for quite some time (say about April). But, before the fleeting pigskin departs entirely from the scene, the Kernel has one more choice tidbit to put up for consumption.

Let us go back to Dec. 30, and the National Football League Championship game between the Green Bay Packers and the New York Giants. In this game, one man stood out above all the others. His name was Sam Huff, the defensive middle linebacker for New York. Sam Huff did not star in this game, but it might have been well if he had. For the millions of television watchers that stayed glued to their sets for the entire three and one-half hours, Sam Huff put on the meanest, dirtiest, most immature show of character ever seen in a professional athlete.

There are many graduates of the University now in professional football ranks, and thankfully none of them has the reputation enjoyed by Huff. In this particular game, Huff picked out opposing fullback Jimmy Taylor, and beat the living hell out of him, often times after the whistle had blown. The latter remarkably had the guts to remain silent after the contest was completed. Sam Huff is getting his way now, but some day the tables will turn. One of those young kids for whom he is setting such an example will grow up and literally wipe the field with Mr. Huff, that is if the league officials don't get to him first. Sam's reward at that time will be a fitting one, for there is no place in the sports world for those of his type.

Heath Answers Opponents On Band Issue

By TOM HEATH

To The Editor:

During the week immediately following the appearance of my letter, The Stumbling 85 in the Kernel, I have been treated to a meaningful lesson in smear, mud slinging and libel. Not since the last statewide political campaign has this much garbage appeared in a newspaper in this state. I went out of my way not to hurt anyone personally, but my critics, evidently having no logical arguments, feel that the only way to answer me is by distorting the facts to make me appear ridiculous and to question my motives.

I could go down the long list of absurd charges made by these people and answer each one carefully and in detail, but this would just waste my time and no doubt bore your readers. Also, this bickering back and fourth between myself and various band members would get nothing done to alleviate the main problem that the band still stinks. I have no ulterior motives. It would seem that the length of time between my leaving the band and the appearance of my letter would indicate that this had nothing to do with my decision to write. I think my qualifications are such that even the most gung-ho band member will agree that I know what is going on in the band. I marched three years at Louisville Male High and participated in the Rose Bowl parade in 1958. I also marched in the "100" in 1960-61 and marched last year with the University of Louisville band. My critics also don't read well, or at least comprehend what they read. My analogy of the "K" was only a means of arriving at my conclusion and obviously should not have been literally.

Mr. Howard did bring up one interesting point: What about the relationship between the band and the ROTC? Mr. Miller sounds the band's slogan, "Join the band and get out of ROTC," but what will happen next semester when compulsory ROTC is dropped? If no change in present music department policies are forthcoming, and no scholarships

Books Stolen

To The Editor:

Well, it's that time of year again—book stealing time. It seems as though every semester around final exam period books have an odd habit of disappearing. Actually it's not odd that they disappear as they are stolen by common thieves. These people have no foresight or consideration for others whatsoever. They appear out of no where to latch on to a book they might need for the next semester, or have hopes of selling—perhaps to obtain a little cash for their romp in Florida.

This past Wednesday night my Business Law book, and my notebook which contained all my notes for every class plus all my research on a term paper, "disappeared" while I was parked in front of Haggin Hall. Maybe I was lucky—the keys were in the ignition—they didn't take my car.

Granted, this was my mistake, but should it have been so costly? How do you replace a book that you have used in two semesters of work, and wish to keep for future reference, that contains areas underlined that were of significance to the instructor? By the same token, how do you expect to get through final examinations without lecture notes? Furthermore, term papers are rough enough without having to do the same research twice.

I realize this isn't a basic campus problem, but it does present a problem to some unfortunate students who have books stolen, and I wonder just what the University policy is on this subject. Perhaps the temptation to steal might be lessened if the punishment were known.

I wonder if this person siphons gas and steals hubeaps, too?

are given prospective band members, then the "Stumbling 85" may deteriorate into the "Sitting 85."

During the basketball games we find that the band arrives late. Perhaps someone should tell Mr. Miller that the Coliseum is immediately behind the football stadium and that festivities start about 7:15. When the band finally arrives they seem to have lost all copies of "On, On." To cite a particular incident, the rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" at the Florida State game was so bad that I felt sorry for the sensitive listeners in the audience, and it hasn't improved with practice. The drums and the trumpets were by far the worst offenders; perhaps the music for that number is lost too.

It was announced on television recently that at Ohio State University 2,500 people assembled to hear the band practice. Under Mr. Fitzgerald's concept of public relations the band is not good enough to participate in many public activities, the main thing that makes a marching band is showmanship. Sousa, Goodman, and other great band leaders had it. Mr. Lutz had showmanship, but both Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Miller are definitely lacking. Mr. Miller is the Southern Texas type who came north to see snow, but has become snowed. He has served in an army band, but he seemingly did not learn any leadership since his ability to lead the band to peak achievement had yet to show during his tenure at this institution.

Looking at these reprisals as a whole they are a pretty sorry lot. The gentlemen, and I use that word loosely, have proved nothing in the attacks on my person except that they are immature, hurt and uninformed. If the people in the band can't realize that it is subpar, I know some seem to, then I feel sorry for them. I still hold nothing against any member of the band, but we who are former band members look with extreme concern on the depreciation of this once fine organization. Mr. Howard, Mr. Drach and Mr. Gordon have suggested that I present my views to the group. Well, I'd be willing to talk to any number of band members at any time or place they desire.

When I wrote the article I hoped to get a reply from Mr. Miller or Mr. Fitzgerald, but they obviously don't wish to stoop to libel, and since they seem to have no argument their silence is noted. I was recently heartened by the appearance in the Dec. 21 Louisville Courier-Journal of an article in which President Dickey was quoted as saying the University might demote or remove selected department heads. I trust the people responsible for investigating various departmental troubles have noted the deplorable situation in our music department. Remember, Mr. Fitzgerald, a leader is responsible for what his group does, or fails to do.

X-Ray Programs

The expansion of health services in Indian universities is one of the many projects in the World University Service program of action.

Classroom Buildings

The interior of this Chilean School of Dentistry must be demolished and completely rebuilt. New equipment and supplies are also needed in other schools. WUS funds will help to provide these.

Bookstores

Indonesian students can buy mimeographed textbooks and lecture notes at greatly reduced prices because WUS provided them with mimeographing services.

Health Services

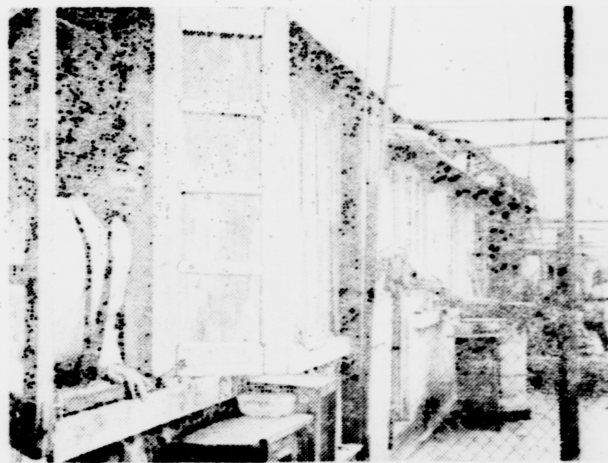

This recently finished World University Service Center at the University of Delhi, India, provides medical care of all types for students there.

Refugee Homes

This Korean refugee student in Seoul is leaving his home for the university. WUS is planning to build hostels to house these students in the future.

Deeken Leads Cats In Louisiana

By WALLY PAGAN

Kernel Daily Sports Editor

Kentucky's SEC title hopes suffered slight setbacks this past weekend, but forward Ted Deeken came along just in time to supply the remedy and lead the Cats to two important conference wins.

Deeken, a premedical student at the University, took over the chores of UK center Don Rolles and turned in two good nights' work against Louisiana State and Tulane Universities.

Dr. Deeken along with a little swab of cotton (Nash that is) produced a second half rally that brought the Cats from a 12 point deficit to a 63-56 victory over LSU.

At Tulane it was the same case. Nash and Deeken once again combined their efforts to score 45 points and led the Wildcats offense to a 82-71 win.

LSU . . . Deeken entered the game with only 16:36 remaining and Kentucky trailing by seven points, and poured through 12 clutch points. He scored the field goal that put the Cats ahead for the second time in the game, after they had trailed by as much as 12 points.

His second half effort was combined with Nash's 17 point second half to pace the Wildcats' attack. Ellis Coper led the Tigers assault with 27 points.

LSU led by eight points at the half, but Kentucky's whittling Wildcats cut the lead to three points with 12:30 remaining, and Deeken pushed through two fielders to put the Cats on top.

It was touch and go until 6:52 remained in the game. The Cats then took the lead at 49-48 and never relinquished it. Their 43 point second half gave them a 63-56 victory.

Tulane . . . Once again it was All America Cotton Nash and substitute Ted Deeken supplying the offensive thrust for the Cats. Nash dumped in 27 points and Deeken added 18 more. Which was his biggest night as a Wildcat. The former Louisville Flager star came in for Don Rolles with 11 minutes remaining in the first half and arched through nine field goals.

Tulane was led by their sparkling guard Jim Kirwin who knotted 37 points for the evening. This came on 15 of 39 from the field and five for eight from the free throw line.

This was another seesaw battle for the Wildcats for the first six minutes. Then Cotton Nash scored a three point play to put the UKats in front 29-19. From there the Cats managed to build a substantial lead and took a 42-31 margin at the intermission.

Kentucky managed to work up as much as a 15 point lead in the second half, but the Green Waves matched right back, twice coming as close as seven points.

Kerwin kept pouring through points and the Green Waves pulled to within 56-49 with 15:49 left in the game. Deeken then hit two quick field goals and Roberts got a tip in to make it 60-49.

With 5:20 to go, Tulane made another move and closed the gap to 64-55. But the Wildcats made an offensive spurt and sped to a 15 point lead at 72-57.

Tulane remained persistent though and kept coming back. Taking advantage of two UK field goals being nullified, the Greenies cut the Cats lead to 74-65 with 3:20 remaining.

With 2:34 left, Tulane cut the UK margin to a mere 76-69. A personal and technical foul was called against the Greenies' Davidson and the Cats cashed in.

Roberts missed the one plus one, but Scott Baesler hit on the technical. Kentucky took the ball out of bounds and Nash was fouled. He hit both shots of the bonus, and the Cats had chalked up another SEC win.

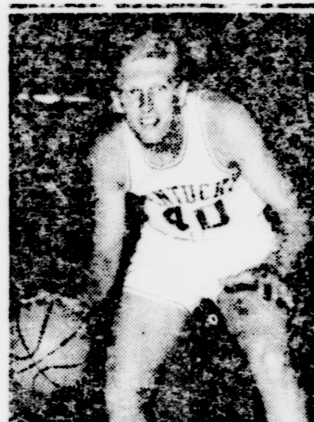

Kentucky now stands 10-4 on the overall season and 3-1 in the SEC. Their next game will pit them against bordering rival Tennessee at the Coliseum Saturday.

INFERIORITY CAN BE FUN

The second gravest problem confronting college students today is inferiority feelings. (The first gravest problem is of course, the recent outbreak of moult among sorority house canaries.) Let us today look into the causes of inferiority feelings and their possible cures.

Psychologists divide inferiority feelings into three principal categories:

1. Physical inferiority.
2. Mental inferiority.
3. Financial inferiority.

(A few say there is also a fourth category: ichthyological inferiority—a feeling that other people have prettier fish—but I believe this is common only along the coasts and in the Great Lakes area.)

Let us start with the feeling of physical inferiority, perhaps the easiest to understand. Naturally we are inclined to feel inferior to the brawny football captain or the beautiful homecoming queen. But we should not. Look at all the people, neither brawny nor beautiful, who have made their marks in the world. Look at Napoleon. Look at Socrates. Look at Caesar. Look at Lassie.

We are inclined to feel inferior

What I mean is that you can't always tell what's inside a package by looking at the outside. (Sometimes, of course, you can. Take Marlboro Cigarettes, for example. Just one glance at that jolly red-and-white package—so bright and pert—so neat but not gaudy—so perfectly in place whether you are at a formal dinner or a beach picnic—so invariably correct for any time, clime, or condition—one look, I say, at this paragon of packs and you know it has to contain cigarettes of absolute perfection. And you are right! That pure white Marlboro filter, that fine, flavorful blend of Marlboro tobaccos, will give you a smoke to make the welkin ring, whatever that is. So those of you who have just been sitting and admiring your Marlboro packs since the beginning of the semester, why don't you open a pack and light one? Light a cigarette, I mean—not the package. Then you can settle back and smoke your Marlboro and, at the same time, continue to gaze rapturously at the pack. Thus you will be twice as happy as you are if that is possible.)

But I digress. Let us turn now to the second category—mental inferiority. A lot of people think they are dumber than other people. This is not so. It must be remembered that there are different kinds of intelligence. Take, for instance, the classic case of the Sizafos brothers, Claude and Sturbridge, students at Wake Forest. It was always assumed that Claude was the more intelligent just because he knew more than Sturbridge about the arts, the sciences, the social sciences, the humanities, and like that. Sturbridge, on the other hand, was ten times smarter than Claude when it came to tying granny knots. But no matter; everybody looked down on "Stupid Sturbridge," as they called him and looked up at "Clever Claude" as they called him. But who do you think turned out to be the smart one when their granny almost got loose and ran away? You guessed it—good old Stupid Sturbridge.

We arrive now at the final category, financial inferiority. One way to deal with this condition is to increase your income. You can, for example, become a fence. Or you can pose for a life class, if your college is well heated.

But a better way to handle financial inferiority is to accept it philosophically. Look on the bright side of poverty. True, others may have more money than you have, but look at all the things you have that they don't—debts, for instance, and hunger cramps.

And what about friendship? You don't need money to have friends, and let me tell you something, good people: the older you get the more you will realize that nothing is so precious as friendship, and the richest man in the world is the one with the most money.

Rich or poor, you can all afford the pleasure of Marlboro, available at popular prices in all 50 states of the Union.

Collier To Head Browns?

Blanton Collier, former University of Kentucky football coach, has been offered the job as Cleveland Browns head coach.

It was reported that Arthur Modell of the National Football League professional team had offered the job to Collier Sunday. Modell said yesterday that he had no comment about the hiring of Collier, but that he would try to fill the vacancy left by Paul Brown within the next few days.

One of the things that has supposedly kept Collier from accepting the position thus far has been his loyalty to his former colleague, Brown.

Brown was fired this week by Modell after a long tenure as head coach of the Cleveland team. Collier served as Brown's assistant before going to UK and returned after he was fired at the end of the 1961 Wildcat season.

Collier is also thinking over another job offer besides the one offered by Modell. Don Shula who served as assistant to Collier at Kentucky has asked the former UK coach to take a position under him with the Baltimore Colts. Shula was recently appointed head coach of the Baltimore team after Webb Eubank was fired.

Collier is reported to be leaning to the Brown's offer. He coached at Kentucky from 1953-61 and posted a 41-36-3 record. His best season came in 1953 when his team notched a 7-3 record.

He was dismissed from the University at the end of the 1961 season because of nonproducing teams, and received an estimated $50,000 at his departure.

Collier had come to Kentucky after Paul Bear Bryant quit as football coach.

SPORTS SHORTS

The Basketball Brochure of the University of Kentucky last year was voted the "Best in the Nation" by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association. It was edited by Ken Linn, director of sports publicity.

Twelve former Wildcats tallied 100 or more points wearing the blue and white. Leading the list is Rex Grossa with 1,744. Others are Ralph Beard, Cliff Hagan, Johnny Cox, Frank Ramsey, Bill Spivey, Vernon Hatton, Wah Wah Jones, Bill Lickert, Jim Line, Bob Burrow, and Bobby Watson.

Kentucky freshmen basketball teams have never had a losing record. Only two teams, 1942 and 1953, were held to tie marks. Harry Lancaster has been frosh coach since 1950 and has a record of 126 wins and only 28 losses.

Now a clean-filling, smooth-writing, money-saving Parker cartridge pen...only $3⁹⁵
New PARKER ARROW

This pen can save you important money on cartridges. Ours are BIGGER and last longer (each is good for 8 or 9 thousand words). But, even if you didn't save a dime, this pen would be worth the extra price. It's a Parker.

And only Parker gives you a solid 14K gold point tipped with platinum—one of the hardest, smoothest alloys ever developed. It should last you for years no matter how much you use it.

The pen won't leak the way the cheap ones do. It has a built-in safety reservoir, and it must meet most of the tough specifications we set for our $10 pens.

→ If you have trouble saying it, say it with a Parker. If you're a little shy and have difficulty saying "I love you" or even "I like you very much"—say it with a Parker.

The new Parker Arrow makes a beautifully expressive gift and looks as if you paid a small fortune for it.

The new Parker Arrow comes in black, dark blue, light blue, light gray, and bright red, with a choice of four instantly replaceable solid 14K gold points. Gift-boxed with five free cartridges.

AWS Senate Approves 4 More Senior Plans

The Senate of Associated Women Students gave final approval Thursday night to four more plans for senior privileges. With the addition of Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Xi Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, and Bowman Hall, the total of women's residence units which utilize the hours plan now stands at 15.

Kinthead Hall, Breckinridge Hall, Keeneland Hall, and Chi Omega are the only remaining housing units which have not submitted workable plans to the AWS organization. Since there is no meeting of the AWS House or Senate during one week preceding final examinations, any plans turned in before semester break cannot be considered until the first meeting of the second semester.

In all four residence halls, the process followed is similar. Each senior woman must sign out before closing hours, stating her name, destination, time leaving and expected return. Either another senior or resident of the house is responsible for seeing that the senior woman using her hours privilege is let back into the house. Keys are used to gain entry back into the house. Included in the Alpha Delta Pi plan is the provision that any woman who loses a key will be required to replace locks on the house and provide new keys to the lock.

To use the privilege, it is stipulated in all plans that the reason for extending hours must meet the approval of the head resident. It is she who issues the keys and is responsible for the senior.

Those units which have previously been approved by both the AWS House and Senate are Kappa Kappa Gamma, Dillard House, Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Delta, Hamilton House, Delta Zeta, Delta Delta Delta, and Alpha Gamma Delta. Delta Gamma and Holmes Hall have no senior women living in the units.

WBKY Drops Kaleidoscope

WBKY, the University's student radio station has changed its operating hours, as of January 1, 1963. The station has removed Kaleidoscope from its program schedule and will now be in operation seven days a week from four p.m. to 11 p.m.

The purpose of Kaleidoscope had been to provide the type of music it carried to the listening public. According to Jim Allison, station manager, since another FM station is now carrying this type of music they saw no reason to remain on the air.

White To Talk On Poetry

Modern poetry will be discussed by Dr. Robert L. White at the Art Club at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Room 303 in the Fine Arts Building.

The topic "Modern Iconic Verse" includes modern poetry whose subject matter is works of art of the artist. The word iconic refers to works of art in general in modern art criticism and modern history of ideas.

In discussing the poetry of the last five years of Poetry Magazine, Dr. White will show slides along with the reading of the poems.

Also, sketches, drawings, prints, sculpture, and painting must be turned in by February 7 for the Art Club showing.

Extra Rooms Are Available In Dorms

Dormitory housing is available for men living off campus who would like to move into residence halls. The spaces will be distributed on a first-come-first-serve basis. Applications will be taken, beginning today, in the Men's Residence Halls office in Kinthead Hall. The application must be accompanied by a $70 first installment toward the room and board. Office hours are from 2:00 to 5:00 daily.
